Specifications:

The entire manuscript must be typewritten double-spaced on A4 paper with margins of at least one inch on each side. The font size should be 12. Each page should be numbered consecutively, in the following order: title page, abstract and key words, main text, tables, references and figure legends. The manuscript should be accompanied by a disc.

Title Page:

The first page should have the title of the article, authors' names, designations, departments, institution and degree(s) (maximum of two). Financial support must be acknowledged. The name, address, telephone and FAX numbers, and email address of the corresponding author should be listed on the title page. A short running title of no more than 30 characters and spaces should be provided at the bottom of the title page.

Abstract:

An original research report should be accompanied by a structured abstract of 250 words or less, having the following headings: Aim, Methods (study design, participants, outcome measures), Results (measurements and level of statistical significance when appropriate), and Conclusions (directly supported by data, along with any clinical implications). For case reports, a structured abstract of less than 125 words should be prepared using the following headings: Background (importance of the subject matter and specific purpose of the report), Case (Summary of pertinent features of the clinical features, treatment and outcome) and Conclusion. For all other types of articles, the abstract should be a single paragraph of no more than 250 words.

Key Words:

Three to five key words for indexing should be listed in alphabetical order.

Text:

In research articles the introduction must state the purpose or objective of the study. A detailed literature review should be avoided in the introduction. Methods of statistical analysis should be identified in the materials and methods section. Any statistical software programs used should be mentioned. The text should comment on, but not repeat, the details in tables or captions. The discussion should include references to literature and be used to raise implications of the results. Unfounded conclusions should be avoided. References in the text may be cited as:

1. Schaefer (1976) affirms ...
2. It was started by Slocum and Saunders (1996), Smitz (1968) and Brown et al (1997) that ...
3. The findings of the present study confirm the observation reported earlier (Pike and Robinson, 1968; McGovern, 1969; and Tomlin et al, 1970).

Tables:

Each table should be typed double-spaced on a separate sheet of paper without vertical lines. Tables should be numbered by the Arabic system, and must include a clear and concise title at the top. Explanatory footnotes may be used if needed and should define all abbreviations used. Sufficient information must be included so that the table can be understood by itself. Tables should not be substituted for data that can be described adequately in two or three sentences in the text.

Figures and Legends: Figures should not be substituted for tables unless understanding is significantly enhanced by the use of a figure. Figures are numbered by the Arabic system.

Legends should define any abbreviations or symbols found in the figures.

Protection of Patients' Right to Privacy:

Identifying information should not be published in written descriptions, photographs, sonograms, CT scans, etc., and pedigrees unless the information is essential for scientific purposes and the patient (or parent or guardian, wherever applicable) gives informed consent for publication. Authors should remove patients' names from figures unless they have obtained informed consent from the patients. The journal abides by ICMJE guidelines:

- 1) Authors, not the journals nor the publisher, need to obtain the patient consent form before the publication and have the form properly archived. The consent forms are not to be uploaded with the cover letter or sent through email to editorial or publisher offices.
- 2) If the manuscript contains patient images that preclude anonymity, or a description that has obvious indication to the identity of the patient, a statement about obtaining informed patient consent should be indicated in the manuscript.

Editorial Process:

All the manuscripts submitted to the IJPC will be screened by the IJPC editor. Screened manuscripts will be allocated to two external reviewers relevant to the manuscript content. Outcomes and decision of the peer reviewers will be communicated to the authors. After completion of recommended revisions by the authors, external reviewers will be asked to accept/decline or modify the revisions. The final decision of external reviewers will be adopted.

Manuscript charges for submission, processing and publication:

The journal does not charge for submission and processing of the manuscripts.
